

ASSIGNMENT 2

Victoria Milcheva

A hero banner with the title;

A short intro about the shop;

The special offer bar at the top;

A <nav> menu with sticky positioning;

A <main> that holds the intro text and the progress bar;

A bootstrap grid to align the text and the bar side to side.

A grid of 12 donation Bootstrap product cards;

Each card has a title, an image, description and an “Add” button;

A `<section>` with a “row g-4” and responsive Bootstrap columns to arrange the cards;

`Object-fit: cover` so the images can cover their whole box;

Buttons that use `data-name` and `data-price` attributes so JS knows what to add to the card when something is called.

A table that lists all selected items;

Quantity fields to each added item;

A “x” button to remove an item of choice;

A text that appears when the cart is empty;

A row with three recommendation cards that also have “Add to card” buttons”;

A summary card on the right side with a subtotal, discount, tax and a final sum.

A text that shows how many items are left to unlock the discount;

A visually progressing Bootstrap bar;

Buttons for proceeding to checkout and continuing to browse;

A form for the donor's information (names, email, phone, ZIP, street and number, city, country and an optional note).

A `<form>` inside `<main>` with Bootstrap classes;

HTML5 validation attributes such as “`required`” and `type=“email”`;

Custom validation for the phone number and the ZIP code with feedback messages;

A sidebar summary;

CONFIRMATION

A thank-you message that shows the email where the confirmation was fictionally “sent”.

A table with all donated items plus the costs;

A short block with the donor's information;

“Make another donation button” that clears the cart and returns the user to the cart section;
